Comprehension Passage: A Night of Adventure

The sun had just set behind the hills, casting a warm orange glow across the meadow. Sarah and her friends gathered near the old oak tree, their laughter filling the air. They were planning a camping trip for the weekend. The excitement was palpable as they discussed the location, the activities, and the delicious meals they would cook over the campfire.

As the night sky emerged, dotted with twinkling stars, they set up their tents and gathered around the crackling fire. Sarah's friend, Jake, began telling ghost stories that sent shivers down everyone's spine. The flickering flames cast eerie shadows, making the stories come to life in the imagination of the young campers.

Later, as they lay in their sleeping bags, the night sounds surrounded them—the chirping of crickets, the distant hooting of an owl, and the rustling of leaves in the gentle breeze. Under the vast expanse of the starlit sky, Sarah felt a sense of awe and wonder that she would remember for a long time.
